Oh, Monarch of Britannia! Condescend
Ingenious Arts to succour and befriend:
Nor yet Nobility! Or Gentry! slight
These curious Works of profit, and delight:
Protect this Book, 'till it raise a lasting Name,
And crown your Goodness with immortal Fame!

May all our Bright Youth some Profit find,
By these Amusements, to improve their Mind!

May every Line, in each resplendent Page,
Instruct, and Entertain their growing Age!

To my much Honoured, and very worthy Subscribers.

Gentlemen and Ladies,

Tho' it must be Acknowledged that there is already extant a large Variety of Copy-Books, and several of them executed by very Able and Accurate Penmen; Yet, I think, I may venture to assert without Vanity, that None of them are so Copious, so Universally Useful, or Adorn'd, in so fine & beautiful a Manner, as the following Composition.

This being the Last Essay, in all probability, that I shall make of so extensive a Nature; I shall use my utmost Art and Industry to make it the best, and most complete: And I presume No One will doubt of my Veracity in this particular, that considers the Terms of my Proposal, and that my Encouragement wholly depends on the Merit of the Performance.

As therefore 'tis my own Interest to Study to excel, I doubt not but you will continue, as you have begun, to support so expensive an Undertaking, and permit me to usher it into the World, under Your Patronage and Protection: And if I am but so happy as to succeed in so laborious an Attempt, and answer the Expectations of my Friends, I shall despise the idle Cavils of a few envious Criticks, who are ever ready to censure what they never can be able to amend.

That you may all long continue to promote and encourage This, and every other Useful Art, in which the Interest and Glory of your Country is any ways concern'd, and become Shining Examples of Virtue and good Manners, is the Sincere Wish of

Gentlemen and Ladies,

Your most Obedient, and most Obliged, humble Serv^t

A Poem, On the Universal Penman: By Mr. John Banks.

*Whether the Memphian Priests, or Hebrew Sage,
First painted Language on the leafy Page;
The vast Invention doubtless came from Heav'n,
And with it half Humanity was giv'n.*

*Hail happy Art! to Science near ally'd,
The Scholar's Treas'ry, and the Merchant's Guide:
Learning, thro' thee, descends to distant Times,
And Commerce travels o'er remotest Climes:
Thou chain'st Events which Ages widely part,
Convey'st the Lover's Wish, reliev'st the lab'ring Heart.*

*But Use alone was what they first pursu'd,
The Characters were few; their Figures rude:
Succeeding Masters heighten'd up th' Intent;
Gave the free Stroke, and added Ornament.*

*Last rose th' Engraver's imitating Skill,
That trac'd them off, and multiply'd at will.
Both Arts in Britain now unrival'd dwell;
Still the last excellent, we ever most excel.*

*Hail happy Artists! for each other born,
Whose Works, united, mutually adorn.
Till Bickham's Age such Penmen had not been;
Till theirs, like his no Hand was ever seen.
With Rules so just, Examples so refin'd,
So aptly chose, and various in their kind,
They leave no Room to emulate their Art;
For sure, a Plan thus finish'd in each Part,
No future Age shall give, no former gave;
What They alone could write, He only could engrave.*

To the Writers of the Universal Penman

Gentlemen

As every Art is more or less Valuable in proportion to its extensive Usefulness, so the Art of Writing claims our highest Esteem, it being One of the greatest Blessings Man can Enjoy: Every Attempt therefore to improve and bring it nearer to Perfection, as 'tis a publick Good, is doubtless intitled to a publick Encouragement.

And, as I have been favour'd with your friendly Assistance in completing my Universal Penman, I question not but it will meet with the desired Success; and answer in every particular the Expectations of the Curious.

The whole having met with the Approbation of the best Judges, I take this Opportunity to pay You my grateful Acknowledgments for Assisting me therein; and shall always Esteem it as a particular Favour conferr'd on

Gentlemen

Your most Obliged Humble Servant.

INTRODUCTION.

The Use of the Pen is of so great Importance to Mankind in general, and so indispensably necessary for the Man of Business, that I think it needless to make any Apology for the Publication of this Work

However, since something may be expected, by way of Preface, to a Book so Useful and Entertaining; I shall take the Liberty to transcribe y^e Thoughts of a very ingenious Author on this Occasion; which I imagine will not only be instructive, but also very applicable to my present Undertaking.

WRITING is the first Step, and Essential in furnishing out the Man of Business. And this Qualification is more excellent, as 'tis more useful in Business, and beautiful to the Eye, & may not improperly be consider'd in two Respects, as it proceeds from the Eye and the Hand; From the one, we have Size and Proportion; From the other, Boldness and Freedom. For as the Exactness of the Eye fixes the Heights and Distances; so the Motion of the Joints, and Position of the Hand, determine the black and fine Strokes, and give the same Inclination and Likeness in the Standing & Turn of the Letters.

But, in Order to write well, there must be just Rules given, and much Practice to put 'em in Execution. Plain, Strong, and neat Writing, as it best answers the Design for Use and Beauty; so it has most obtain'd among Men of Business. A full, free, open Letter, struck at once, as it discovers more of Nature, so it gives a Masterly Beauty to the Writing; to which may be added such ornamental Turns

INTRODUCTION.

Turns of the Pen, as seem rather design'd to fill up Vacancies on the Paper, than studiously compos'd to adorn the Piece. In Flourishing the Fancy would be so luxuriant, was it not corrected by the Judgment, as almost to destroy the End of Writing; as Airs in Musick, when too often repeated, or too long or too variously performed, disorder the Harmony of a just Composure. —

But, as above, if Usefulness and Beauty are the Excellencies of Writing; that which will, with the greatest Facility, contribute to these, is the best Method of Teaching. Supposing, therefore, the Make and Proportion of the Letters and Joinings to be once well fixed and understood, and then if the Learner is us'd to copy the great Variety of Examples which are here produc'd, his Hand will grow confirm'd in an Aptitude and Readiness, which will insensibly arrive at Perfection and Dispatch; and give in Writing, what we admire in fine Gentlemen; an Easiness of Gesture, and disengag'd Air, which is imperceptibly caught from frequently conversing with the Polite and Well-bred. —

DRAWING is another necessary Qualification, and therefore, I have attempted to make the Decorations of this Work fit for the imitation of those, whose Genius prompts them to the Study of that Art. —

But as Writing is the most Useful Accomplishment of y^e two, I have given a larger Number of Specimens for that purpose; Exhibited in Precepts Divine and Moral, with many Examples in Trade and Business. —

And as the Whole is compleated, through y^e friendly Assistance of several Eminent Penmen, and Engravid with the greatest Care and Exactness; I make no doubt but it will meet with a favourable Reception from the Publick; & that I my Self shall be excus'd for attempting so Universal a Performance.

G. Bickham.

READING and WRITING.,

By the Arts of Reading and Writing, we can sit at Home and acquaint our selves with what is done in all the distant Parts of the World, & find what our Fathers did long ago in the first Ages of Mankind,

The Art of Letters does, as it were, revive all the past Ages of Men and sets them at once upon the Stage; and brings all the Nations from afar, and gives them, as it were, a general Interview; so that the most distant Ages of Mankind may converse together, and grow into Acquaintance.

'Tis to the Pen and Press we Mortals owe || All we believe, and almost all we know.

Among all the Inventions of Mankind none is more Admirable, necessary, useful or convenient than Writing, by which a Man is enabled to delineate his very Conceptions, communicate his Mind without Speaking, and correspond with his Friend at ten thousand Miles distance, and all by the Contrivance of twenty six Letters. (Viz. A a b c, &c.)

To
Mr. Geo. Bickham

Sir,

Nothing could excite me to think well of my own Judgment in the Art of Penmanship, it would be your desiring me to Assist you in the Writing some part of your New Copy Book.

As your Design is both Laudable & Useful, I willingly embraced the Opportunity of serving You, and have therefore sent you a Page on the Art of Writing, & as you Approve of that I shall be ready to do you further Service.

That a Work of this Nature hath been long wanted admits of no Exception, and your Abilities to execute it are too well known to need any Recommendation: What you have Engraved for my late celebrated Master Mr. Charles Snell, & several other eminent Penmen are sufficient Testimonies.

Nothing, in my Opinion, can be more Advantageous to the Publick than the Work you are at present engaged in, and that your Labours may meet with Encouragement equal to your Merit is the hearty Desire of

Sir,

Your very humble Serv^t.

On the Art of Writing.

Hail mistick Art! which Men like Angels taught,
 To speak to Eyes, and paint unbodiy'd Thought!
 Tho' Deaf, and Dumb; blest Skill, reliev'd by Thee,
 We make one Sense perform the Task of Three.
 We see, we hear, we touch the Head and Heart,
 And take, or give, what each but yields in part.
 With the hard Laws of Distance we dispence,
 And without Sound, apart, commune in Sense;
 View, tho' confin'd; nay, rule this Earthly Ball,
 And travel o'er the wide expanded All.
 Dead Letters, thus with Living Notions fraught,
 Prove to the Soul the Telescopes of Thought;
 To Mortal Life a deathless Witness give;
 And bid all Deeds and Titles last, and live.
 In scanty Life, Eternity we taste;
 View the First Ages, and inform the Last.
 Arts, History, Laws, we purchase with a Look,
 And keep, like Fate, all Nature in a Book.

EDUCATION.

A human Soul without Education is like Marble in the Quarry, which shews none of its inherent Beauties till the skill of the Polisher fetches out the Colours; and discovers the ornamental Clouds that run thro' the body of it. Education draws out to view every latent Virtue w^{ch} without such Helps would never be able to make their Appearance.

We rise above one another in y^e Esteem of y^e World by different degrees of Perfection, proportion'd to the Want or Advantage of a liberal Education.

The care of Education is a work of y^e highest Moment, as all y^e Advantages or Miscarriages of a Man's Life, are in a great Measure dependent on it. 'Tis y^e Duty therefore of Parents to infuse into y^e untainted Youth early notions of Justice & Honour; that so y^e possible Advantages of good Parts, may not take an Evil turn, or be perverted to base & unworthy purposes.

William Leakey scrip.

Education.

Children, like tender Oziers, take the Bow,
 And as they first are fashion'd always grow:
 For what we learn in Youth, to that alone
 In Age we are by second Nature prone.

All Youth, set right at first, with Ease go on,
 And each new task is with new pleasure done;
 But if neglected till they grow in Years,
 And each fond Mother, her dear Darling spares,
 Error becomes habitual, and you'll find,
 'Tis then hard Labour to reform the Mind.

Youth like the soften'd Wax with ease will take,
 Those Images that first Impressions make.
 If those are fair their Lives will all be bright,
 If foul they'll cloud it all with Shades of night.

Williamson Clark scrip.

Education

'Tis Education alone that can mend Nature, & improve the Talents of that great Benefactress. Has she given us a competent Share of Sense and Reason? Education carries up our Sense to Wisdom, and our Reason to Judgment. Ab.

Education is a Learned Alchymist that purges away our Drofs & sublimes our Dispositions: That reads us Lectures of Use upon every turning and winding of our Actions; informs us in our general and particular Duties; teaches us to worship Heaven, to honour our Parents, to reverence our Elders, to subject our selves to the Laws, to obey our Governors, to love our Friends, to cherish our Wives, be affectionate to our Children, and not injurious to any.

Education strikes in with Philosophy in many lessons; teaches us not to be over-joy'd in Prosperity, nor too much dejected in Adversity; not to be dissolute in our Pleasures, nor in our Anger to be transported to a Fury that is Brutal. Wxyz

Command of Hand.

*Sure in its Flight, tho' swift as Angels Wings;
The Pen commands; & the bold Figure springs:
While the slow Pencil's discontinu'd Pace,
Repeats the Stroke; but cannot reach the Grace.*

*How justly Bold, when in some Master's Hand;
The Pen at once joins Freedom with Command!
With Softness strong, with Ornaments not vain;
Loose with Proportion, and with Neatness plain;
Not swell'd, yet full, compleat in ev'ry Part;
And Artful most, when not affecting Art.*

*O'er Virgin-Paper when the Hand we trace,
How new, how Free, how perfect ev'ry Grace!
So smooth, so fine, the nimble strokes we view,
Like Trips of Fairies o'er the Morning-Dew.*

VIRTUE.

As Virtue in general is of an amiable and lovely Nature, there are some particular kinds of it which are more so than others, and these are such as dispose us to do good to Mankind. Temperance and Abstinence, Faith & Devotion, are in themselves perhaps as laudable as any other Virtues, but those w^h make a Man popular & beloved, are Justice, Charity, Munificence, and in short, all y^e good qualities y^e render us beneficial to each other.

The two great ornaments of Virtue, which shew her in the most advantageous View, and make her altogether lovely, are Chearfulness and Good Nature. These generally go together, as a Man cannot be agreeable to others who is not easy within himself. These are both very requisite in a virtuous mind, to keep out Melancholy from the many serious Thoughts it is engaged in, and to hinder it's natural hatred of Vice from sowing into Severity and Censoriousness.

W. Clark scrip.

Virtue.

With glittering Beams & native Glory bright,
 Virtue, nor Darkneſs dreads, nor covets Light;
 But from her ſettled Orb looks calmly down,
 On Life or Death, a Priſon or a Crown.

Virtue's the chiefſt Beauty of the Mind,
 The nobleſt Ornament of Human-kind;
 Virtue's our Safeguard, & our guiding Star,
 That ſtirſ up Reaſon, when our Senſes err.

True Sons of Virtue, mean Repulſe diſdain,
 Nor does their ſhining Honour ever ſtain;
 Their glorious Minds are ſo ſecurely great,
 They neither ſwell, nor ſink at turns of Fate.

W^m Leckey Scrip^t

Virtue

*Virtue's the Friend of Life, the Soul of Health;
The poor Man's Comfort, & the rich man's Wealth.*

Virtue & Friendship above all things purchase to men Love and Good-will.

*Virtue has secret Charms which all Men Love,
And those that do not choose her, yet approve.*

Virtue and Arts are attained by frequent Practice & Perseverance.

By Virtuous Use thy Life and Manners frame, Manly and Simply pure, and free from Blame.

ADVICE.

*Learn to contemn all praise betimes;
For flattery's the nurse of Crimes.*

*Seek you to train your fav'rite Boy?
Each Caution, ev'ry Care employ;
And ere you venture to confide,
Let his Preceptor's heart be try'd;
Weigh well his manners, life, & Scope,
On these depends thy future hope.*

*With early Virtue plant thy breast,
The specious Arts of Vice detest.*

W. Clark scrip^t

RELIGION.

Moral Virtues themselves without Religion are but cold, lifeless & insipid: 'Tis that which opens the Mind to great Conceptions, fills it with the most sublime Ideas, and warms the Soul more than sensual Pleasures.

*Glorious of God, Man's Good, are the fix'd Poles,
On which the Sphere of true Religion rolls.*

Religion better qualifies all sorts of Men, and makes them in publick Affairs the more serviceable; Governors apter to rule wth Conscience, and Inferiours for Conscience sake more willing to obey.

W, CLARK SCRIPSIT,

*Hail! gentle, PLEASANT! unmingled joy!
Whose fulness Satisfies, but ne'er can cloy!
Spread thy soft Wings o'er my devoted breast,
And settle there an everlasting Guest.*

*Let homage be to pure Religion paid,
Seek her Protection, and implore her Aid;
That she may keep thy Soul from harm secure,
And turn thy Footsteps from the Harlot's door.
Who with curst Charms lures the unwary in,
And soothes with Flattery their souls to Sin.*

*Religion prompts us to a Future State;
The last appeal from Fortune & from Fate;
Where God's all-righteous way will be declar'd,
The bad meet Punishment, the good Reward.*

Joseph Champion Scripsit.

Religion

The commands of Heaven, in the observance of which Religion principally consists, are very plain & obvious to the meanest Understanding, and are nothing else but Exhortations to Love, and directions for social Happiness.

*Great is the steadiness of Soul and Thought,
By Reason bred, and by Religion taught:
Which like a Rock amidst y^e stormy Waves,
Unmov'd remains, and all Afflictions braves.*

Divine worship is that which distinguishes us from the Brutal part of the creation, more than that ray of the Divinity our reason itself: For they frequently discover some Affinity to the one, but in no one Action whatsoever betray the least Resemblance to the other.

There is nothing which gives one so pleasing a Prospect of human Nature, as the Contemplation of Wisdom and Beauty: The latter is peculiar to that Sex which is therefore called Fair; & when both meet in the same Person the Character is lovely and desirable.

Beauty, like Ice, our Footing does betray:
Who can tread sure on the smooth slipp'ry Way?
Pleas'd with the Passage we slide swiftly on,
And see the Dangers which we cannot shun.

Wisdom is glorious and never fadeth away, yet she is easily seen of them that love her, and found of such as seek her: For she goeth about seeking such as are worthy of her, sheweth her self favourably unto them in the Way, and meeteth them in every Thought.

W. Leekey scrip^t

THEODORICK,
KING of the GOTHs, &c.
 TO BOETIUS.

You have so well improv'd your Self Abroad in the Athenian Schools, & so familiariz'd the Roman Student with the Grecian Tutors, that their Learning is, by your Means, become Naturaliz'd at Rome: whatever the Athenians had Monopoliz'd you have made Common to the Romans, who are beholden to your laborious Translations, that they can now Read the Musick of Pythagoras, the Astronomy of Ptolemy, the Arithmetick of Nicomachus, the Geometry of Euclid, the Divinity of Plato, the Logick of Aristotle, and the Mechanics of Archimedes in the Latin Tongue: All which you have adorn'd with so much beauty of Language, & illustrated with so great propriety of Expression, that even the Original Authors, did they equally Understand both Idioms, would prefer your Work to their own.

George Bickham, Fecit. 1734.

How pleasant, and how sweet it is, to see
 Riches and Grandeur mixt with Decency!
 But much more Sweet, thy labring Steps to guide
 To Vertue's heights, with Wisdom well supply'd,
 And all the Magazines of Learning fortify'd.

A little Learning is a dangerous Thing,
 Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian Spring.
 There shallow Draughts intoxicate th' Brain,
 And drinking largely sobers us again.

Fir'd with the Charms fair Science does impart,
 In fearless Youth we tempt the Heights of Art.
 While from the bounded Level of our Mind,
 Short Views we take, nor see the Lengths behind.
 But more advanc'd behold with strange Surprize,
 New, distant Scenes of endless Science rise.

Willington Clark, scrip.

LEARNING.

The Design of Learning, is either to render a Man an agreeable Companion to himself, and teach him to support Solitude with Pleasure; or, if he is not born to an Estate, to supply that Defect, and furnish him with the Means of getting one.

*Look cautious round; your Genius nicely know,
And mark how far its utmost Stretch will go.*

Nobility, Riches, State, and Supremacy can procure us a customary Respect, & make us the Idols of an unthinking Croud; but Knowledge and Learning alone recommends us to the Love of those in a superior Class, who admire more the Merits of our Understanding, than the Advantages of our Birth & Fortune.

Samuel Taux scrip!

Learning.

Aristippus, being asked wherein the Learned differed from the Unlearned, said, Send them Naked to Strangers, and you shall see. am.

Aurelius used to say, he would not part with the little. He had learned for all the Gold in the World; and that he had more Glory from what he had read and written, than from all the Victories he had won, and all the Realms he had conquered.

Learning is Silver in the Hands of Common People, Gold in those of Noble Descent, but Diamonds in the Hands of Princes. am.

THE Penman's Advice

To Young Gentlemen.

Ye British Youths, our Ages Hope & Care,
 You whom the next may polish, or impair,
 Learn by the Pen those Talents to insure,
 That fix ev'n Fortune, & from Want secure;
 You with a dash in time may drain a Mine;
 And deal the Fate of Empires in a Line;
 For Ease and Wealth, for Honour & Delight,
 Your Hands go Warrant, if you well can Write.
 "True ease in Writing comes from Art, not Chance;
 "As those move easiest, who have learn'd to Dance.

To Young Ladies.

Ye springing Fair, whom gentle Minds incline,
 To all that's curious, innocent, and fine!
 With Admiration in your Works are read,
 The various Textures of the twining Thread.
 Then let the Fingers, whose unrivall'd Skill,
 Exalts the Needle, grace the Noble Quill.
 An artless Scrawl y' blushing Scribler shames;
 All should be Fair that Beautious Woman frames.
 Strive to excell, with Ease the Pen will move;
 And pretty Lines add Charms to infant Love.

Study?

Aristotle says, that to become an able Man in any profession, three things are necessary; that is to say, Nature, Study, and Practice.

He most improves who Studies with Delight,
And learns sound Morals whilst he learns to write.

Make the Study of the sacred Scriptures your daily Practice, and principal Concern; and embrace the doctrines contained in them, as the Oracles of Heaven, and the Dictates of that Spirit which cannot lie. June 2.

Improvements of the Mind by Study and Meditation? without these

Knowledge, softened with Complacency and good Breeding, will make a Man equally belov'd and admired; but being join'd with a severe and morose Temper, it makes a Man rather fear'd than respected.

*From Art and Science true Contentment flow;
For tis a Godlike Attribute to know.*

Knowledge is that which next to Virtue truly and essentially raises one Man above another; it finishes one half of the human Soul; it makes Beings pleasant to us; it fills the Mind with entertaining Views, & administers to it a perpetual Series of Gratifications; it gives ease to Solitude, & a gracefulness to Retirement; it fills a Publick Station with Suitable Abilities, & adds a Luster to those who are in possession of them.

William Brooks scrip.

*In Nature's Search we to the Cause advance;
But Knowledge must inform our Ignorance:
To judge of Arts we must their Objects know,
And from the Current to the Spring we go.*

*Merit should be for ever plac'd
In Knowledge, Judgment, Wit, & Taste;
For these, 'tis own'd, without dispute,
Alone distinguish Man from Brute.*

*Knowledge, by Time, advances slow and wise,
Turns ev'ry where its deep-discerning Eyes;
Sees What beset, and What may yet beset;
Concludes from Both, & best provides for All.*

Industry

Flee Sloth, the Canker of good Men, and Parts,
Of Health, of Wealth, of Honour, and of Arts.
Such as court Fame must not their senses please,
Her Chariot lags when drawn by Sloth and Ease.

Observe the Ant, for She instructs the Man
And Preaches Labour, gathering all She can,
Then brings it to increase her Heap at home
Against the Winter; wth She knows will come;
And when y^t comes She creeps abroad no more,
But lies at home, and Feasts upon her Store.

Quickly lay hold on time, while in your Power;
Be careful well to Husband ev'ry Hour
Despair of Nothing which you would attain,
Unweary'd Diligence your point will gain.

Samuel Vaux, Sr.

Industry

So true to Industry, and so zealous for Employment have wise Men been in all Ages, that they have looked upon Idleness and Inactivity as Crimes of a heinous Nature, and those who have search'd into Human Nature observe, that nothing so much shews the Nobleness of Soul, as y^t it's Felicity consists in Action.

Industry is needful in every condition of Life; we cannot without it act in any State decently, or usefully, either to the benefit or satisfaction of others, or to our own Advantage or Comfort; it is requisite for procuring Ease Sweet and Satisfaction to the Mind, attended with a good Conscience, sweetens our Enjoyments, and seasons our Attainments, is a Guard to Innocence and a Bar to Temptations.

W. Clark  scripsit.

Idleness.

If we look back into the Old World, we shall find that all its Vigour was owing to Exercise, Sprightliness, and Activity: Luxury & Idleness, first debilitated, & impair'd y^e strength of Nature.

*The first Physicians by Debauch were made,
Excess began and Sloth sustains the Trade.
By Chace our Long-liv'd Fathers earn'd their Food,
Toil string'd the Nerves and purify'd the Blood.*

Action keeps the Soul in constant Health, but Idleness corrupts, and rusts the Mind; for a Man of great Abilities may by Negligence & Idleness become so mean & despicable, as to be an Incumbrance to Society, and a Burthen to himself.

Honesty.

*An Honest Mind, safely alone,
May travel thro' the burning Zone;
Or thro' the deepest Scythian Snows,
Or where the fam'd Hydaspes flows.*

*Honesty, could it be discerned by our naked
Eye, would, in the Opinion of Plato, win us to an Inexpressible Love of Wisdom.*

*Convince the World that you're devout, & true,
Be just in all you say, and all you Do;
Whatever be your Birth, you're sure to be
A Peer of the first Magnitude to Me.*

J. Oldfield sculpit.

HONESTY.

An honest Man's Dealings are square and above-board; he discovers the Faults of what he would sell; restores the over-seen Gain of a false Reckoning; and esteems a Bribe venemous, tho' it comes gilded over with the Colour of Gratuity.

*Short is the Date in which ill Acts prevail,
But Honesty's a Rock can never fail.*

The Cheeks of an honest Man are never stain'd with the Blushes of Recantation; nor does his Tongue falter to make good a Lye, with the secret Glosses of a double or reserv'd Sense. His fair Conditions are without Dissembling, and he loves Actions above words; hates falshood worse than Death; is a faithful Client of Truth and no Man's Enemy.

John Van Scrip.

Discretion does not only shew it self in Words, but in all the Circumstances of Action, and is like an Under-Agent of Providence to guide and direct us in the ordinary Concerns of Life.

If we look into particular Communities & Divisions of Men, we may observe that it is the Discreet Man not the Witty, nor the Learned, nor the Brave who guides the Conversation, and gives Measures to the Society.

There are many shining Qualities in the Minds of Men, but there is none so useful as Discretion; it is this indeed which gives a Value to all the rest, which sets them at Work in their proper Times and Places, & turns them to the Advantage of the Person who is possessed of them.

Gabriel Brooks, scripsit.

Falshood.

Whatsoever Convenience may be thought to be in Falshood and Dissimulation, it is soon over; but the Inconvenience of it is perpetual, because it brings a Man under an everlasting Jealousy and Suspicion; so that he is not believ'd when he speaks Truth, nor trusted when, perhaps, he means Honestly.

*Let Justice o'er thy Word and Deed preside;
And Falshood shun as a Deceitful Guide.*

An Untruth in Discourse is a Disagreement between the Speech and the Mind of the Speaker. When one thing is Declar'd and another Meant, words are no Image of the Thoughts: it makes the Marks of Speech insignificant, and the Meaning of one Man unintelligible to another; this is a breach of the Article of Commerce, and an Invasion upon the Rights of Society.

Yet the best course of Life your choice invite,

*Of all the nauseous complicated Crimes,
That both infect and stigmatize the Times;

Where Vice and Folly have an equal share.*

MODESTY.

A just and reasonable Modesty does not only recommend Eloquence, but sets off every great Talent which a Man can be possessed of. It heightens all the Virtues in which it accompanies, like the Shades in Paintings, it raises and rounds every Figure, and makes the Colours more beautiful tho' not so glaring as they would be without it.

Immodest Words admit of no defence,
For want of Decency is want of Sense.

Modesty is not only an Ornament, but also a Guard to Virtue. It is a kind of quick and delicate feeling in the Soul, which makes her shrink and withdraw her self from every thing that has Danger in it. It is such an exquisite Sensibility as warns her to shun y^e first appearance of every thing which is hurtful.

In modest Actions there are certain Rules,
Which to transgress confirms us Knaves or Fools.

Good-Nature.

*Indulgence soon takes with a noble Mind,
Who can be harsh that sees another kind?
Mildness and Temper have a Force divine,
To make ev'n Passion with their Nature join.*

*Love, rais'd on Beauty, will like that decay,
Our Hearts may bear its slender Chains a Day,
As flow'ry Bands in Mantonness are worn,
A Morning's Pleasure, and at Evening torn;
Good-Nature binds more easy, yet more strong
The willing Heart, and only holds it long.*

*Trust not too much your now resistless Charms,
Those, Age, or Sickness, soon or late disarms:
Good-Nature only teaches Charms to last,
Still makes new Conquests, and maintains y^e past.*

L. Austin Scripsit.

Good Nature.

Good-Nature, is the Foundation of all Virtues, either Religious or Civil; Good-Nature, which is Friendship between Man and Man, good Breeding in Courts, Charity in Religion and the true Spring of all Beneficence in General.

*Good-Nature and good Sense must ever join;
To err is Human, to Forgive, Divine.*

Good Sense and Good-Nature are never separated, tho' the ignorant World has thought otherwise; Good-Nature, by which I mean Beneficence and Candor, is the Product of right Reason, which of necessity will give allowance to the Failings of others, by considering that there is nothing perfect in Mankind.

Envy, and Detraction.

Envy will Merit as its shade pursue;
 But like a Shadow proves the Substance true.
 For envy'd Wit, like Solitip's, makes known
 Th' opposing Body's grossness, not its own.

Keep no Company with a Man who is given to Detraction;
 to hear him Patiently, and shew a Countenance of Encouragement is to partake of his Guilt, and prompt him to a Continuance in that Vice, whith all good Men should shun him for.

There is a Lust in Man no Charm can tame,
 Of loudly publishing his Neighbour's Shame;
 On Eagles Wings Immortal Scandals flie,
 While Virtuou's Actions are but born and die.

Josephus Champion Script.

The false Criticks and Poetafters Sepulchre.

A Simile, or Comparison.

Dear Thomas didst thou never pop-
 Thy Head into a Firman's Shop;
 There, Thomas, didst thou never see,
 ('Tis but by way of Simile.)
 A Squirrel spend his little Rage,
 In jumping round a rolling Cage?
 The Cage, as either Side turn'd up,
 Striking a Ring of Bells a-top?
 Mov'd in the Orb, pleas'd in y^e Chimes,
 The foolish Creature thinks he climbs;

But here or there, turn Wood or Wire,
 He never gets two Inches higher;
 So fares it with those merry Blades,
 That frisk it under Pindus' Shades;
 In noble Songs, and lofty Odes,
 They tread on Stars, & talk with Gods:
 Still dancing in an airy Round,
 Still pleas'd with their own Verses sound;
 Brought back, how fast, so e'er they go,
 Always aspiring, always low.

It is great Delight to laugh at some Men's Ways;
 But a much greater to give Merit Praise.

Criticism.

One great Mark, by which you may discover a Critick who has neither Taste nor Learning, is this, that he seldom ventures to praise any Passage in an Author which has not been before received and applauded by the Publick; and that his Criticism turns wholly upon little Faults and Errors. This part of a Critick is so very easie to succeed in, that we find every ordinary Reader, upon y^e publishing of a new Poem, has Wit & Ill-nature enough to turn several Passages of it into Ridicule, and very often in y^e right Place.

Errors, like Straws, upon the Surface flow;
He who would search for Pearls must dive below.

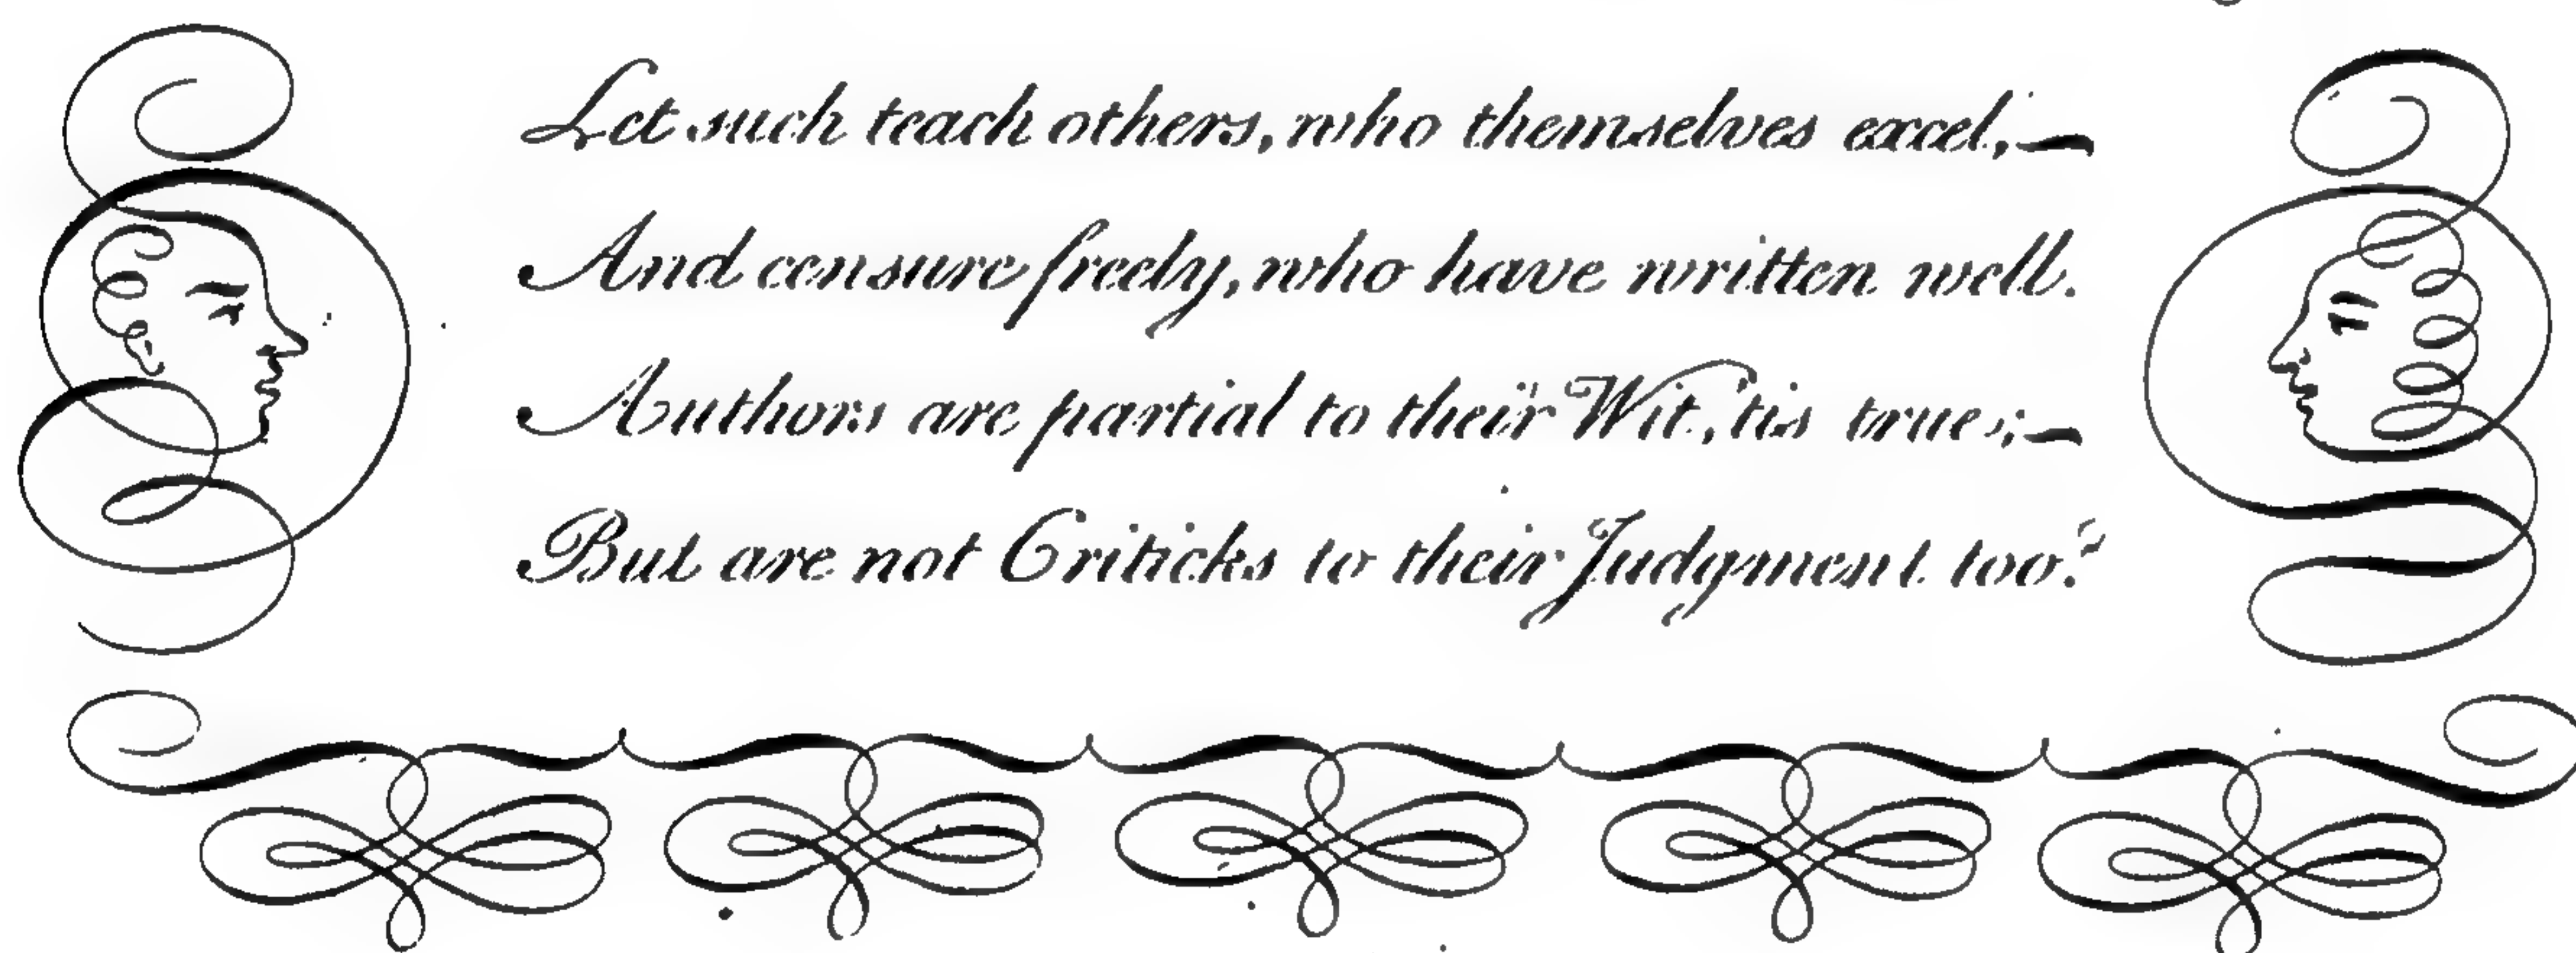

A true Critick ought to dwell rather upon Excellencies than Imperfections, to discover the concealed Beauties of a Writer, and communicate to the World such things as are worth their Observation. The most exquisite Words and finest Strokes of an Author, are those which very often appear the most doubtful and exceptionable, to a Man who wants a Relish for polite Learning; and they are these, w^{ch} a sour undistinguishing Critick generally attacks with y^e greatest Violence.

E. Austin Scripsit.

*In Poets, as true Genius is but rare,
True Taste as seldom is the Critick's share;
Both must alike from Heav'n derive their Light;
These born to judge, as well as those to write.*

*A perfect Judge will read each Work of Wit,
With the same Spirit that it's Author Writ;
Survey the Whole; nor seek slight Faults to find,
Where Nature moves, & Rapture warms y^e Mind.*

CRITICKS.

A famous Critick, says he, having gathered together all the Faults of an Eminent Poet, made a present of them to Apollo, who received them very graciously, and resolved to make the Author a suitable Return for the Trouble he had been at in collecting them. In order to this, he set before him a Sack of Wheat, as it had been just threshed out of the Sheaf. He then bid him pick out the Chaff from among the Corn, & lay it aside by itself. The Critick applied himself to the Task with great Industry and Pleasure, and after having made the due Separation, was presented by Apollo with the Chaff for his Pains.

 That ever lives, nor can to Death submit;
 No Tomb he needs, whose Monument is Wit.*

*Wit, like Beauty, triumphs o'er the Heart, requires the Direction of the nicest Judgment, by so much y more as it indulges it self in the most boundless Freedoms. In short, it must Laughter.

Man is the merriest Species of the Creation, all above and below him are Serious. He sees things in a different Light from other Beings, & finds his Mirth rising from Objects that perhaps cause something like Pity or Displeasure in higher Natures. Laughter is indeed a very good Counterpoise to the Spleen; and seems but reasonable that we should be capable of receiving Joy from what is no real Good to us, since we can receive Grief from what is no real Evil. April. 11.

Laughter, while it lasts, slackens & unbraces the Mind; weakens the Faculties, and causes a kind of Remissness and Dissolution in all the Powers of the Soul; & thus far it may be look'd upon as a Weakness in the Composition of human nature. But if we consider the frequent Reliefs that we receive from it, & how often it breaks y^e Gloom which is apt to depress the Mind, and damp our Spirits with transient unexpected gleams of Joy, one would take care not to grow too Wise for so great a Pleasure of Life.

Joseph Champion Esq. Scriset.

Decency.

The Comeliness of Person and Decency of Behaviour, adds infinite Weight to what is pronounced by any one. 'Tis the want of this that often makes the Rebukes and Advice of old rigid Persons of no Effect, and leave a displeasure in the Minds of those they are directed to: But Youth and Beauty, if accompanied with a graceful and becoming Severity, is of mighty force to raise, even in the most Profligate, a Sense of Shame. In Milton the Devil is never describ'd asham'd but once, & that at the Rebuke of a Beauteous Angel.

*So spake the Cherub, and his grave Rebuke
Severe in youthful Beauty, added Grace
Invincible: Abass'd the Devil stood,
And felt how awful Goodness is, and saw
Virtue in her own Shape how lovely! saw, and Found his Loss.*

Without Decency Valour would degenerate into Brutality, Learning into Pedantry, and the gentlest Demeanour into Affectation. Even Religion it self, unless Decency be the Handmaid which waits upon her, is apt to make People appear guilty of Sourness and ill Humours: But this shews Virtue in her first original Form, adds a Comeliness to Religion, and gives its Professors the justest Title to the beauty of Holiness.

*He that for Int'rest, Friendship does pretend,
Forfeits the Name and Virtue of a Friend.*

One should our Interests and our Passions be;
My Friend must slight y^e Man that injures me.*

E. Austin scripsit.

Friendship

All other things desirable in Life are good as appropriated to some particular. Money serves our Uses, Riches procure us Respect, Honours gain us Applause, Pleasures contribute to our Enjoyment of the World; Health secures us against Pain, and gives us the true use of our Limbs. Friendship contains in it a number of Conveniencies; it is of Service in all Exigencies and Circumstances of Life; is to be excluded from no Place, or Occasion, can never be Unseasonable, never Troublesome.

*Tell me, ye knowing, and discerning Few, Who by a secret Sympathy can share
Where I may find a Friend who's firm & true, My Joy, my Grief, my Misery, my Care
Who dares stand by me when in deep distress, He must be prudent, faithful, just & Wise
And then his Love & Friendship must express, Who can to such a pitch of Friendship rise.*

A Faithful Friend is a strong Defence; and he that hath found such an one, hath found a Treasure. Nothing doth countervail a Faithful Friend, and his excellency is unvaluable. A Faithful Friend is the Medicine of Life; and they that Fear the Lord shall find him. Whoso searcheth the Lord shall direct his Friendship aright; for as he is, so shall his Neighbour (that is his Friend) be also.

W. Rippax Scrip.

Friendship

Love and Esteem are the first Principles of Friendship, which always is Imperfect where either of those two is wanting.

No Fate my vow'd Affection shall divide
 From thee, Heroick Youth! Be wholly mine!
 Take full Possession! All my Soul is thine!
 One Faith, one Fame, one Fate shall both attend;
 My Life's Companion, & my Bosom-Friend.

Friendship is a strong and habitual Inclination in two Persons to promote the Good and Happiness of one another.

*Love first invented Verse, and form'd the Rhyme,
The Motion measur'd, harmoniz'd the Chime.
To liberal Arts enlarg'd the Narrow-Soul'd,
Softend the fierce, and made the Coward bold.*

*Anger, in hasty Words or Blows,
Itself discharges on our Faces;
And Terror too finds some Relief
In Tears, which wait upon our Grief:
No ev'ry Passion, but fond Love,
Unto its own Redress does move:*

*But that alone the Wretch inclines
To what prevents his own Designs;
Makes him lament, and sigh, and weep,
Disorder'd, tremble, fawn, and creep;
Postures which render him despis'd,
Where he endeavours to be priz'd.*

*In Love what Use of Prudence can there be?
More perfect I, and yet more pow'rful She!
One Look of her's my Resolution breaks;
Reason it self turns Folly when she speaks.*

Observations on Marriage;
By way of ADVICE.

INTRODUCTION.

BEfore Marriage we cannot be too inquisitive and discerning in the Faults of the Person beloved, nor after it too dim-sighted and superficial. However perfect and accomplished the Person appears to you at a distance, you will find many Blemishes and Imperfections in their Humour, upon a more intimate Acquaintance, which you never discovered or perhaps suspected. — Here therefore Discretion and Good-nature are to shew their Strength; the first will hinder your Thoughts from dwelling on what is disagreeable, the other will raise in you all the tenderness of Compassion and Humanity, and by degrees soften those very Imperfections into Beauties. —

will give you an easie Companion for Life;
Virtue and good Sense an agreeable Friend;

Marriage the happiest State of Life would be,
If Hands were only join'd where Hearts agree.

Marriage enlarges the Scene of our Happiness and Miseries.
A Marriage of Love is pleasant; a Marriage of Interest easie;
and a Marriage where both meet happy. A happy Marriage has in it all the Pleasures of Friendship, all the Enjoyments of Sense and Reason, and indeed, all the Sweets of Life.

Marriage.

To set Marriage in its proper Light; we ought to consider it as a State of Grace, and the first Ordinance of God to Mankind; as a Business of the greatest Importance in Life, and a Change of Condition, we cannot make with too much Reverence and Deliberation. Septem. 1735.

*O Marriage! Happiest, easiest, safest State;
Let Debauchees and Drunkards scorn thy Rights,
Who, in their nauseous Draughts & Lusts, profane

Marriage is describ'd as the State capable of the highest Humane Felicity, as an Institution calculated for a constant Scene of as much Delight as our Being is capable of. It is the Foundation of Community, & the chief band of Society: It is, or ought to be, that State of perfect Friendship, in which there are, according to Pythagoras, Two Bodies with but One Soul. Great Riches.

King Solomon made a Navy of Ships on the Shore of the Red Sea, in the Land of Edom. And Hiram sent in the Navy his Servants, Ship-Men that had Knowledge of the Sea, with the Servants of Solomon. And they came to Ophir, and fetch'd from thence Gold, four hundred and twenty Talents, and brought it to King Solomon. Now the Weight of Gold that came to Solomon in one Year, was six hundred threescore and six Talents of Gold; Besides that he had of the Merchant-Men, and of the Traffick of the Spice-Merchants, and of all the Kings of Arabia, and of the Governours of the Country. And all King Solomon's drinking Vessels were of Gold, and all the Vessels of the House of the Forest of Lebanon were of pure Gold, none were of Silver, it was nothing accounted of in the days of Solomon: For the King had at Sea a Navy of Tharshish, with the Navy of Hiram; once in three Years came the Navy of Tharshish, bringing Gold, and Silver, Ivory, and Apes, and Peacocks. So King Solomon exceeded all the Kings of the Earth for Riches, and for Wisdom. I. Kings Chap. IX. Ver. 26, &c.

HONOUR.

On polish'd Springs, true Men of Honour move,
Free is their Service, and unbought their Love:
When Danger calls, and Honour leads the way,
With Joy they follow, and with Pride obey.

Not all the Threats, or Favours of a Crown,
A Prince's Whisper, or a Tyrant's Frown;
Can awe the Spirit, or allure the Mind,
Of him who to strict Honour is inclin'd.

Honour! that Spark of the Celestial Fire,
That above Nature makes Mankind aspire,
Ennobles the rude Passions of our Frame,
With Thirst of Glory and Desire of Fame.

*Honour's the Conscience of an Act well done,
Which gives us Pow'r, our own Desire to shun:
The strong and secret Curb of headstrong Will!
The Self-Reward of Good, and Shame of Ill.*

*O Honour! frail as Life, thy fellow Flow'r,
Cherish'd, and watch'd, and hum'rously esteem'd;
Then worn for short Adornment of an Hour,
And is, when Lost, no more to be redeem'd!*

Peter Norman Scrip.

Honour.

Honour, tho' a different principle from Religion, produces the same effects. The lines of Action, tho' drawn from different parts, terminate in the same point. Religion embraces Virtue, as it is enjoined by the laws of God; Honour, as it is graceful and ornamental to humane Nature.

*Honour's a sacred Tie; the Law of Kings, —
The noble Mind's distinguishing Perfection, — —
That aids & strengthens Virtue where it meets her,
And imitates her Actions where she is not.*

Bland. & P. 1.

Humility is the grand Virtue that leads to Contentment; it cuts off the Envy and Malice of Inferiours & Equals, and makes us patiently bear the Insults of Superiours.

As Arrogance, & Conceitedness of our own Abilities are very shocking & offensive to Men of Sense and Virtue, we may be sure, they are highly displeasing to that Being who always delights in an humble Mind.

Of all the Causes whith conspire to blind,
 Man's erring Judgment & misguide the Mind,
 What if weak Head with strongest Biass rules
 To Pride, the never-failing Vice of Fools. ee

Pride hides a Man's Faults from himself, and magnifies them to others.

Whatever Nature has in Worth deny'd,
 She gives in large recruits of needful Pride;
 Pride, where Wit fails, steps in to our defence,
 And fills up all the mighty Void of Sense.

Pleasure and Recreation.

Pleasure and Recreation, of one kind or other, are absolutely necessary to relieve our Minds and Bodies from too constant Attention and Labour..

*In rural Seats the Soul of Pleasure reigns,
The Life of Beauty fills the rural Scenes;
Even Love, if Fame and Poets truth declare,
Drew first its Breathings in a rural Air.*

Recreation after Business is allowable, but he that follows his Pleasure instead of his Business, shall in a little time have no Business to follow..

E. Austin Scripsit December 1736.

Pleasure.

*Too frequent Use does the Delight exclude:—
Pleasure's a Toil when constantly pursu'd.*

It is a frivolous Pleasure to be the Admiration of a gaping Croud, but to have the Approbation of a good Man in the Cool Reflections of his Closet, is a Gratification worthy an Heroic Spirit: The Applause of the One, makes the Head Giddy; but the Attestation of the other makes y^e heart glad.

*Fond airy Pleasure dances in our Eyes,—
And spreads false Images in fair disguise.*

W. Clark scrip.

GAMING.

The Diversion of Cards and Dice, however Engaging, are oftner Provocatives to Avarice and Loss of Temper, than mere Recreations and innocent Amusements.

*Here Scaramouch and Harlequin, at Gaming can't agree;
They Quarrel, and poor Scaramouch is humbld'd down you see.*

*All Cheats at Cards, still gazing for their prey,
Quarrels create; and Mischiefs follow Play:
It loses Time, disturbs y^e Mind and Sense,
Whilst Oaths and Lies are oft the consequence,
And Murders, sometimes, follow loss of Pence.*

John Bickham Scrip.

Liberality.

Liberality and Kindness, Generosity and Benevolence: All the Actions that flow from these Springs will fill us with Pleasure, and make us Dear to Heaven and Acceptable to Mankind.

Liberality should have such a mixture of Prudence, as not to exceed the Ability of the Giver.

Riches in the Hand of a Beneficent Man are a Blessing to the Publick: Such a one is a Steward to Providence and the noble Means of correcting the Inequalities of Fortune, of relieving the Miserable, and spreading Happiness to all that are within the Reach of his Acquaintance.

LETTERS.

By the Assistance of Letters the Memory of past Things is preserved, and the Foreknowledge of some Things to come is Revealed: By Them even Things Inanimate Instruct and Admonish Us.

*Inscription is the Language of a Tomb;
Art can by Letters speak when Nature's dumb.*

Letters annihilate intervenient Time, and make past Ages present; So that the Living and Dead converse together; and wth this Advantage, that we may learn from the Admonitions of the Dead, that which the Living dare not, or care not to say to Us.

Musick.

Musick is an insearchable and excellent Art, which rejoiceth the Spirits and unloadeth Grief from the heart, and consisteth in time and number.

*Musick alone with sudden Charms can bind
The wand'ring sense, & calm the troubled mind.*

Hear how Timotheus' various Lays surprize,
 And bid alternate passions fall and rise;
 While, at each Change, the Son of Lybian Jove,
 Now burns with Glory, and then melts with Love,
 Now his fierce Eyes with Sparkling Fury glow,
 Now Sighs steal out, and Tears begin to flow:
 Persians and Greeks like Turns of Nature sound,
 And the World's Victor stood subdued by Sound.

Tell me, O Muse! (for thou, or none, canst tell)
 The mystick powers that in soft Numbers dwell.
 At first a various unform'd Hint we find,
 Rise in some Godlike Poet's fertile Mind,
 Till all the parts and Words their Places take;
 And with just Marches, Verse & Musick make.

Music.

Musick has Charms to sooth a savage Breast,
 To soften Rocks, and bend a knotted Oak;
 I've read that Things inanimate have mov'd,
 And, as with living Souls, have been inform'd
 By magick Numbers, and persuasive Sound.

The breathing Flutes soft Notes are heard around,
 And the shrill Trumpets mix their silver Sound.
 The vaulted Roofs with echoing Musick ring;
 Touching the vocal Stops, & trembling String.

Musick.

*Musick resembles Poetry, in each,
Are nameless Graces which no Methods teach,
And which a Master-hand alone can reach.*

On a Lady's Singing.

*Whene'er she Sung, so melting were her Strains,
The Flocks, unsed, seem'd listening on the Plains;
The Rivers would stand still, the Cedars bend;
And Birds neglect their Linions to attend.*

J. Champion Scrip^t 1737.

*Hail, Musick! infant Breath of tenderest Love,
Thou Taste of the Seraphick Joys above,
Blest Harmony! which all Mankind approve.*

Poetry.

*True Poetry carries its own Conviction along with it, and has native Beauty enough to silence all its Opposers, and dazzle them with over-powering Lustre... Like Insects at Night, it spreads a Circle of Day around it,
and undesignedly betrays its own Beauty.*

The Author of the Tragedy of Cato.

*The Mind to Virtue is by Verse subdu'd;
 And the true Poet is a publick Good;
 This Britain feels, while, by your Lines inspir'd,
 Her Free-born Sons to glorious Thoughts are fir'd.
 In Rome had you espous'd the vanquish'd Cause,
 Enflam'd her Senate, and upheld her Laws;
 Your Manly Scenes had Liberty restor'd;
 And giv'n the just Success to Cato's Sword:
 O'er Caesar's Arms your Genius had prevail'd;
 And the Muse triumph'd, where y^e Patriot sail'd.*

Sic honor & nomen divinis vatibus atque Carminibus venit. Hor.

Gabriel Brooks Strip.

Poetry has had the general Suffrage of all Ages on its side, and been admir'd even by Barbarians themselves, when all other Traces of Politeness have been effaced.

*Thou know'st Parnassus' sweets the World invite,
And smoothest Strains gives always most delight;
When Truths sublime in Verse harmonious roll,
Twill into Raptures raise a Stoick Soul.*

Joseph Champion scripsit.

Poetry.

Poetick Flights are pleasing Charms we use,
 Heroick Thoughts and Virtue to infuse.

Poetry is an Art, whose sweet,
 Insinuation might almost convey Piety into resisting Nature, and melt the hardest Soul to the love of Virtue.

Things of deep Sense we may in Prose unfold,
 But they please best in lofty Numbers told.

Painting.

Of all the Productions of human Ingenuity, of all the Operations, which the Fancy, assisted by the Hand is capable, there is none more excellent or Useful, none more Universally Admired than the Art of Painting.

~~~~~

*Whatever got in Poetry held True;
If duly weigh'd, holds just in Painting too;
Alike from Heav'n congenial first they came;
The same their Labours, & their Praise y' same;
Alike, by turns, they touch the conscious Heart,
And Each on Each reflects the lights of Art.*

~~~~~

It is not without just Ground that the Art of Painting is held in such high Repute: Her Beauties are, & ever will be Entertaining to the Curious, and Nothing more illustrates the Glory of a Nation than her Productions.

Champion Scripsit: ~~~~

Is D D L L E To Young Painters.

Like Zeuxis first with trembling Hand design,
 Some humble Work, and study Line by Line;
 A Roman Urn, a Grove-encircled Bow'r,
 The blushing Cherry, or the bending Flow'r.
 Painsful and slow to Noble Arts we rise,
 And long long Labours wait the glorious prize.
 Yet by Degrees your steadier Hand shall give
 A bolder Grace, and bid each Object live.
 Even Raphael's self from rude Essays began,
 And shadow'd with a Coal his shapeless Man.

*In Ancient Times, when Painting first began,
A Pen, or Chalk, thus imitated Man.*

*Long time the Sister-Arts, in Iron Sleep,
A heavy Sabbath did supinely keep:
At length, in Raphael's Age at once they rise,
Stretch all their Limbs, & open all their Eyes.
Thence rose the Roman & the Lombard Line,
One Colour'd best, and one did best Design:
Raphael's, like Homer's, was the nobler Part;
But Titian's Painting Look'd like Virgil's Art.*

*By slow Degrees the Painting Art advanced;
As Man grew polish'd, Picture was enhanc'd.*

Brooks.

Decorum in Painting.

'Twas a saying of Xenophon, that, Nothing pleases a Man so much as Decency & Order: And 'tis a Rule in Horace, which is equally Just in Painting as in Poetry.

*Set all things in their own peculiar place.
And know, that Order is the greatest grace.*

This good Oeconomy, or distribution of Figures and Strokes in their proper places, produces the same Effect, in relation to the Eyes, as a Concert of Musick to the Ears.

SCULPTURE.

Sculpture, too Sacred to be Man's Device,
 When Moses govern'd, had in Heaven its Rise;
 Where GOD, to make the useful Mistr'n known,
 He Carv'd his Laws on Tabulets of Stone;
 And thus, at once, to Israel did impart
 His own Commands, and this immortal Art.

Some carve y^e Trunks, & breathing Shapes bestorn,
Giving the Trees more Life than when they grow.

The Ancients are of Opinion that the Labours of the Sculptor would have done greater Service to their Deities, than those of the Poet. They tell us that the great Veneration which the People paid to them, was owing to their Statues, and these were of Use to improve the Wonders the Poets related of these Gods. The Statue of Jupiter Olympus made them more easily give Credit to the Fable, that arms him with Thunder-bolt.

The Statues, so well Carv'd, such Life did show;
Spectators wonder'd why they did not go.

Wise Phidias, thus his Skill to prove, —
 Thro' many a God avanc'd to Jove; —
 Had taught the polish'd Rocks to shine —
 With Airs and Lineaments Divine; —
 Till Greece, amaz'd, and half-afraid, —
 Th' Assembled Deities survey'd. —

This Wonder of the Sculptor's Hand, —
 Produc'd, his Art was at a Stand: —
 For who would hope New Same to raise, —
 Or risque his well-establish'd Praise, —
 That, his high Genius to approve, —
 Had carv'd the Gods, and came to Jove. —

He Carv'd in Ivory such a Maid, so Fair,
 Whose Nature could not with his Art compare.

Whoever Meditates some great Design,
 Let Strength and Nature dawn in every Line;
 Let Art and Fancy full Perfection give,
 And Each bold Figure seem to move and live.

The meanest Sculptor in the Emilian Square,
 Can imitate, in Brass, the Nails and Hair;
 Expert in Trifles, and a cunning Fool,
 Able to express of Parts, but not dispose of Whole.

Liberty.

The Love of Liberty with Life is giv'n,
And Life it self's th' inferior gift of Heav'n.

*Lucius seems fond of Life; but what is Life?
'Tis not to stalk about, and draw fresh Air
From time to time, or gaze upon the Sun;
'Tis to be Free. When Liberty is gone,
Life grows insipid, and has lost its Relish.*

LIBERTY.

 Profuse of Bliss, & pregnant with Delight!
 Eternal pleasures in thy Presence reign,
 And smiling Plenty leads thy wanton Train.
 Eas'd of her Load, Subjection grows more light,
 And Poverty looks chearful in thy Sight:
 Thou mak'st the gloomy Face of Nature gay,
 Giv'st Beauty to the Sun, & pleasure to the day.*

Liberty.

LIBERTY SHOULD REACH EVERY INDIVIDUAL OF A PEOPLE, AS THEY ALL SHARE ONE COMMON NATURE; IF IT ONLY SPREADS AMONG PARTICULAR BRANCHES, THERE WOULD BETTER BE NONE AT ALL; SINCE SUCH A LIBERTY ONLY AGGRAVATES THE MISFORTUNE OF THOSE WHO ARE DEPRIV'D OF IT, BY SETTING BEFORE THEM A DISAGREEABLE SUBJECT OF COMPARISON.

Reputation.

Reputation, Honour, and Preferm^t are gain'd, retain'd, and maintain'd by Discretion, Sincerity, and Humility; with which till a Man is accommodated and accomplish'd, he is not esteem'd as a worthy Member in a Common-wealth.

Reputation, which is the Portion of every Man who would live with the knowing and elegant Part of Mankind, is as Stable as Glory if it be as well founded; & if common Cause of human Society is thought to be concern'd when we hear a Man of good Behaviour calumniated.

Success.

Success, the Mark no mortal Wit,
 Or surest Hand can always hit?
 For whatsoever we perpetrate,
 We do it all by Fate.
 Which disinherits,
 For spite of Merits,
 Great and true Sons,
 Of great and noble Actions,
 Nor do we bring forth
 Events still Worth
 But sometimes find in their stead
 Fortune and Cowardice succeed.

*When thou hast BUSINESS of concern to do
With Prudence Act, and Resolution too;
Under whose Conduct you will seldom fail,
Wisdom and Courage join'd, must needs prevail.*

Success in Business; Or, the Arts of Thriving.

The Arts to be used as means of Thriving in the World, are no other than those of an ingenious Industry and unreprieveable Integrity, the two best & most solid Bases of a prosperous Condition.

Promissory Notes.

A Promissory Note mentioning Order is indorsible from one Person to another; which is done by the present Possessor's writing his Name on the Back of it, and delivering it up to the Party, to whom he intends to assign over his Property therein. —

It is unnecessary to have a Promissory Note payable to Bearer indorsed, if you are satisfy'd the Note is good: And if a Note be indorsed, it is necessary to write a Receipt thereon, to prevent its being negociated, after it is paid and deliver'd up. —

If the Drawer of a Note refuses Payment, the Note is good against the Indorser. — The delivering up a Promissory Note to the Person who sign'd it is a sufficient Voucher of its being paid, nor is there any Occasion of writing a Receipt thereon. —

Promissory Notes, and Book-Debts, if not legally demanded in six Years, cannot be recover'd by Law: And if you keep a Promissory Note upon Demand, in your own Hands above three Days, and the Person it's upon should fail, the Loss will be your own; but if he fail within the three Days it will light on the Person that paid it you. Let all Notes be made for Value receiv'd, and in the Form of these that follow.

ON Commission.

Commission is the Authority or Power by which one Person, -
 Transacts Business for, or under another, which is commonly by Deed or Writing, duly executed, which the delegated Person produces upon all proper & necessary Occasions, to satisfy those who have a right to examine into it: So in the Army, & in all Offices under y^e Crown, a Person is said to have a Commission given him, who had no Power to act before: In Trade, it sometimes means the Power of acting for another, & sometimes the Premium or Reward that a Person receives for his so doing, which is $\frac{1}{2}$, 1, 2, 3, or more per Cent, according to the Nature of the Affairs.

*Commission vested in an Honest Friend,
 A second self supplies, does Wealth extend:
 In Trade a premium or Reward declares,
 And power to Act in all our just Affairs.*

INVOICES

Invoices shew the Cost and Charges on Goods sent by Sea, from one place to another; like a Bill of parcels among Tradesmen.

The person who sends the Invoice is called the Factor, who is employed by the Merchant abroad; to buy, sell, remit, ship, and pay Charges on Goods sent from hence, or brought hither.

Such Factor is allowed a certain Rate per Cent for his Trouble, which is called Commission, & is paid by the Employer.

The Form of an Invoice is as follows. —

COMMISSION,
To the Master of a Ship.

The
Company of English Merchants,
For discovery of New Trades.

Do hereby Give and Grant unto Job Lookout Master of the George and Elizabeth, of the Burthen about Two Hundred and Fifty Tons, free Liberty and License to Sail to all or any the Lands, Islands, Ports, Havens, or Territories within the Limits granted to the said Company: Provided never-the-less upon this express Condition; That the said Master doth fully conform in all things to the Rules, Directions, and Restrictions hereunto annexed, otherwise this License to be Null and Void; and the said Master with his Ship, Goods and Merchandize, to be liable to all Penalties that may by Law be inflicted: Provided also that this License shall be of force only for One Voyage out and home, and no longer: Dated in London the Tenth day of September, in One Thousand Seven Hundred Thirty and Nine. —

By Order of the Governour, Consuls, and Assistants of the said Company.

RULES,

Directions, and Restrictions;

To be observed by the within Named Job Lookout,

In his Voyage outwards and homewards.

Viz.

The said Master shall not take on board his said Ship, either for the Account of himself or any other Person whatsoever, any Goods or Merchandize, without a Permit or Warrant from the said Company, or their proper Officer, specifying the Nature, Quantities, Qualities, Kinds, Species, Weights, Numbers, and Package of the said Goods and Merchandize.

The said Master upon his Arrival in his designed Port outwards, before any Goods or Merchandize are unladen, shall deliver to the Company's Agent there, a full and particular Account of all Goods and Merchandize on board his said Ship, and by whom the said Goods or Merchandize were put on board in Great-Britain, and to whom they were Consigned, which said Account is to be signed by the said Master.

And the said Master upon his Arrival back at his delivering Port in Great-Britain, shall, before he break Bulk, deliver to the said Company, or their proper Officer, a like full and particular Account of his Loading, and by whom the several Species and Quantities of Goods or Merchandize were put on board his said Ship, and to whom they were Consigned, which Account is to be Signed by the said Master.

TRUTH.

Truth is the Band of Union, and the Basis of Humane Happiness: Without this Virtue there's no Relyance upon Language, no Confidence in Friendship, and no Security in Promises or Oaths.

*Credit obtain'd, Untruth for Truth may pass
As current Coin, tho' underneath 'tis Brass.
But if Perfidious thou but once be found,
Thy Words tho' true, like to Untruth will sound.*

Truth is always consistent with it self, and needs nothing to help it out; it is always near at hand, and sits upon our Lips, and is ready to drop out before we are aware: Whereas a Lye is troublesome, and sets a Man's Invention on the Rack, and one Trick needs a great many more, of the same kind, to make it good.

The Distinguishing Marks OF A True Fine Gentleman.

When a good Artist would Express any remarkable Character in Sculpture, he endeavours to Work up his Figure into all the Perfection his Imagination can form; and to imitate not so much what is, as what may or ought to be. I shall follow their Example in the Idea I am going to trace out of a fine Gentleman, by assembling together such Qualifications as seem requisite to make the Character compleat. In Order to this, I shall premise in general, that by a fine Gentleman I mean a Man compleatly qualified as well for the service and Good, as for the Ornament and Delight of Society. When I consider the Frame of Mind peculiar to a Gentleman, I suppose it graced with all the Dignity and Elevation of Spirit that Human Nature is capable of. To this I would have joined a clear Understanding, a Reason free from Prejudice, a steady Judgment, and an extensive Knowledge. When I think of the Heart of a Gentleman, I imagine it firm and intrepid, void of all inordinate Passions, and full of Tenderness, Compassion, and Benevolence. When I view the fine Gentleman with regard to his Manners, methinks I see him Modest without Bashfulness, frank and affable without Impertinence, obliging and complaisant without servility, cheerful and in good Humour without Noise. These amiable Qualities are not easily obtained; neither are there many Men, that have a Genius to excel this Way. — A finished Gentleman is perhaps the most uncommon of all the great Characters in Life. Besides the natural Endowments with which this distinguished Man is to be born, he must run through a long series of Education. Before he makes his Appearance and Things in the World, he must be principled in Religion, instructed in all the moral Virtues, and led through the whole Course of the polite Arts and Sciences. He should be no Stranger to Courts and to Camps; he must Travel to open his Mind, to enlarge his Views, to learn the Policies and Interest of foreign States, as well as to fashion and polish himself, and to get clear of National Prejudices; of which every Country has its Share. To all these more essential Improvements, he must not forget to add the fashionable Ornaments of Life, such as are the Languages and the bodily Exercises most in Vogue: Neither would I have him think even Dress it self beneath his Notice.

It is no very uncommon Thing in the World to meet with Men of Probity; there are likewise a great many of Honour to be found: Men of Courage, Men of Sense, and Men of Letters are frequent: But a true fine Gentleman is what one seldom sees. He is properly a Compound of the various good Qualities that embellish Mankind. As the great Poet animates all the different Parts of Learning by the Force of his Genius, and irradiates all the Compass of his Knowledge by the Lustre and Brightness of his Imagination; so all the great and solid Perfections of Life appear in the finished Gentleman, with a beautiful Gloss and Varnish; every thing he says or does is accompanied with a Manner, or rather a Charm that draws the Admiration and Good-will of every Beholder.

Merchants Accounts or the Italian method of Book-keeping by double Entry, as now practis'd by Merchants, may truly be allow'd to comprehend all Excellencies in Accounting: For as the judicious Author of the Gentleman Accomptant, Observes: All other methods which particular persons have occasionally instituted for their own private Concerns are found in this; and all those methods whatsoever they are, were, or may be invented for the use of any Acco.^t are parts of, & as it were taken out of the Debitor, & Creditor; and so much as they want of that, however in private concerns, serviceable enough, just so much they want of desirable perfection.

Blest be the Man, his Memory at least,	When for a Wife the youthful Patriarch sent,
Who found the Art, thus to unfold his breast,	The Camels, Jewels, and the Steward went,
And taught succeeding Times an easy way —	And wealthy Equipage, tho' grave and slow,
Their secret Thoughts by Letters to convey;	But not a Line, that might the Lover show,
To baffle Absence, and secure Delight,	* The Ring and Bracelets woid her Hands & Arms;
Which, till that Time, was limited to Sight,	But had she known of melting Words, the Charms
The parting, farewell, Speke, the last Adieu,	That under secret Seals in Embush lie,
The lessning Distance past, then loss of View;	To catch the Soul, when drawn into the Eye;
The friend was gone, & some kind Mementos gave,	The fair Assyrian had not took his Guide,
And Absence, Separated, like the Grave,	Nor her soft Heart in Chains of Pearl been ty'd.

Playing on the Lute.

What Charms you have, from w.^h high Race you Sprung,
Have been the pleasing Subjects of my Song? —
Unskild & young, yet something still I write? —
Of C^ondish Beauty join'd to Cecil's Wit? —
But when you please to show the babling Muse? —
What greater Theme your Musick can produce, —
My babling Praises I repeat no more? —
But hear, rejoice, stand silent, and Adore. —
The Persians thus, first gazing on the Sun,
Admir'd how high 'twas plac'd, how bright it shone? —

But, as his Pow'r was known, their Thoughts were rais'd,
And soon they Worship'd; what at first they prais'd.
Eliza's Glory lives in Spencer's Song? —
And Cowley's Verse keeps Fair Orinda young: —
That as in Birth, in Beauty you Excel. —
The Muse might dictate, and the Poet tell: —
Your Art no other Art can speak? — and You, —
To show how well you play, must play anew: —
Your Musick's power your Musick must disclose;
For what Light is, 'tis only Light that shows? —

I take this Opportunity of recommending to you,
One very material Branch of Education, which has hitherto been too much neglected: A particular which is of use in every Station of Life, and which methinks every Master should teach his Scholars; I mean the writing of Familiar Letters. To this end, instead of some other things, there might be a punctual Correspondence established between two Boys, who might act in any imaginary parts of Business, or be allowed sometimes to give a range to their own Fancies, and communicate to each other whatever Trifles they thought fit, provided neither of them ever fail'd at the appointed time to answer his Correspondent's Letter.

I believe I may venture to affirm, that the generality of Boys would find themselves as much advantaged by this Custom (when they come to be Men), as by any other that can possibly be propos'd: But this I Submit to your Superior Judgments, and am

Zeal for the publick Good is the Characteristick of a Man of Honour, & a Gentleman; & must take place of pleasures, profits, and all other private Gratifications; whoever wants this Motive, is an open Enemy, or an inglorious Neuter to mankind, in proportion to the misapplied Advantages with which Nature & Fortune have blessed him: But you have a Soul animated with nobler Views, & know that the Distinction of Wealth & plentiful Circumstances, is a Tax upon an Honest Mind, to endeavour, as much as the Occurrences of Life will give him leave, to guard the Properties of others, and be vigilant for the Good of his fellow Subjects.

To a Gentleman of Learning, and Virtue.

SIR,

July 4. 1740

The greatest Honour of Human Life is to live well with Men of Merit; and I shall always esteem it a peculiar Happiness to be reckoned amongst the Number of your Friends.

The Conversation of a Gentleman, that has a refined Taste of Letters, & a disposition in which those Letters found nothing to Correct, but very much to Exert, is a good Fortune too uncommon to be enjoyed in Silence. In others, the greatest Business of Learning is to weed the soil; in You, it had nothing else to do, but to bring forth Fruit. Affability, Complacency, and Generosity of Heart, which are natural to You, wanted Nothing from Literature, but to refine and direct the Application of them. I am

All Young Gentlemen,

Who has lately lost a worthy Father.

Dear Sir,

The virtuous Principles you had from that excellent Man whom you have Lost, have wrought in you as they ought, to make a Youth of Three and Twenty incapable of Comfort upon coming into Possession of a great Fortune. I doubt not but you will honour his Memory by a modest Enjoyment of his Estate, and scorn to triumph over his Grave by employing in Riot, Excess, and Debauchery, what he purchased with so much Industry, Prudence, and Wisdom. This is the true Way to shew the Sense you have of your Loss, and to take away the Distress of others upon the Occasion. You cannot recal your Father by your Grief, but you may revive him to his Friends by your Conduct.

Thy Father's Merit sets thee up to View,
And plants thee in the fairest point of Sight,
To make thy Virtues, or thy Faults conspicuous.

Shining thro' all his Meadows roll, —
He's but a Wretch, with all his Lands,
That always wears a narrow Soul.*

*And mingled still with Wealth & State,
His dazzled Mind can never know;
His true Dimensions & his Weight —
Are far inferior to their Show.
Were I so tall to reach the Pole, —

Ill Effects of Tyranny.

Besides Poverty and Want, there are other Reasons that debase the Minds of Men, who live under Tyranny, though I look on this as the Principal. It is odd to consider the Connection between Despotic Government and Barbarity, & how y^e making of one Person more than Man, makes y^e rest less.

*Too long this Queen imperiously thus Sway'd,
By no set Laws, but by her Will obey'd.
Her fearful Slaves, to full Obedience grown,
Admire her Strength, & dare not use their own.*

If there be but one Body of Legislators, it is no better than a Tyranny: if there are only two, there will want a casting Voice, and one of them must at length be swallow'd up by Disputes and Contentions: Four would have the same Inconvenience as two, and a greater Number would cause too much Confusion: Therefore a mixt Government consisting of three Branches, y^e Regal, y^e Noble, & the Popular, is the best.

To the
Kings most Excell^t Majesty;

The humble Petition of A. B. Gent.
Sheweth,

That your Majesty has been graciously pleased to appoint your Petitioner to be Sheriff of the County of K... wherein he would most readily, and faithfully serve your Majesty according to his bounden duty, but that his abode is very remote from the said County, and his Estate too small to support the charge of the said Office.

Your Petitioner therefore most humbly prays your Majesty will be graciously pleased to appoint some more fit & able person to the said Office.

And your Petitioner (as in duty bound) shall ever Pray, &c.

(Designed & Written by J. Champion, in the Year 1740.)

To the Right Honourable the Lords
Commissioners of the Admiralty.

The humble petition of George Frey.
Sheweth,

That Your Petitioner hath served in his Majesty's Royal Navy seven Years in quality of Able Seaman, and five Years as Gunners Mate on Board his Majesty's Ships the Cumberland and Dartmouth Cap. Brown Commander.

That He passed Examination for a
Gunner November 12. 1739. & humbly refers
Your Lordships to the Certificates hereunto annexed.

Your Petitioner humbly Prays Your Lordships to Appoint him Gunner of the Britannia Sloop, S^r John Saunderson Commander.

And as in duty bound shall ever Pray, &c.

Wm. Dove for Ver

These are to Certifie whom it may Concern that the bearer hereof George Troy served five Years in Quality of Gunners Mate on Board his Majesty's Ships the Cumberland & Dartmouth both under my Command, during which time he behaved soberly Diligently and Obedient to Command, And I recommend him as deserving Encouragement. Given under my hand on Board his Majesty's Ship the Cumberland this 12 day of October, 1739.

Brown

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty.

We whose Names are hereunder Written Gunners, in his Majesty's Royale Navy, do hereby Certifie that George Troy performed the Several Heads of Examination appointed by Your Lordships to Qualify him for a Gunner on the 12 of November, 1739. And we do believe him capable to serve as Gunner on Board any of his Majesty's fourth Rate Ships. Given under our hands on Board the Namure this 14 day of November, 1739.

Freedom.

Sweet are the Jess'min's breathing Flow'rs, —
 Sweet the soft falling Vernal Show'rs; —
 Sweet is the Gloom the Grove affords, —
 And Sweet the Notes of Warbling Birds; —
 But not the Groves, nor Rains, nor Flow'rs, —
 Nor all the Feather'd Songsters Pow'rs, —
 Can ever Sweet, or Pleasing be, —
 O, lovely Freedom! without Thee. —

To the
Practitioners in the Law.

Gentlemen,

Since the Affairs which are daily carried on in our Courts of Judicature are, doubtless, of as great Importance as those transacted in the way of Trade; and, there being several Ingenious Gentlemen of your Profession, who are very desirous of seeing some select pages entirely appropriated to the Law-Bands: I therefore, at Mr. Bickham's Request, have writ some such Pieces for the Universal-Spinner; and, present this as a Specimen of the Secretary, or Law-Running Band, adapted to the use of the Practising-Clerk, with the following Specimens annex'd; all which are submitted to your superior Judgments, by

Gentlemen;

A Man who entertains an high Opinion of himself is naturally ungrateful: He has too great an Esteem of his own Merit to be thankful for any Favours received. am

Tho' Square-Text once triumphantly did Stand,
And boldly usher'd in th' Engrossing-Hand;
Tho' wanting Merit now, did Shine of Old,
In This Indenture, and to Have and Hold.

More Bashfulness, without Merit, is Awkward;
and Merit, without Modesty, insolent: But Modest Merit has a double Claim to Acceptance, and generally meets with as many Patrons as Beholders. am

Written in 1707,

By the late DUKE of Devonshire.

O despicable State of all that growne
Under a blind Dependency on One!
How far inferior to the Herds that range,
With Native Freedom o'er the Woods & Plains!
With them no Fallacies of Schools prevail,
Nor of a Right Divine the nauseous Tale,
Can give to one among themselves the Pow'r,
Without Controul his Fellows to devour.
To reasoning Human Kind alone belong,
The Arts to hurt themselves by reasoning wrong.

Howe're the foolish Notion first began,
Of trusting Absolute to lawless Man;
Howe're a Tyrant may by Force subsist;
For who would be a Slave that can resist?
Those set the Casuist safest on the Throne,
Who make the People's Interest their own.
And chusing rather to be lov'd than fear'd,
Are Kings of Men, not of a servile Herd.
O Liberty, too late desir'd, when lost,
Like Health, when wanted, thou art valued most!

Oriental Languages.

INTRODUCTION.

*The Hebrew is the most antient Language in the World, at least that is known to the Europeans: The square Hebrew Character is originally the Chaldee Character, which the Jews assumed during the Babylonish Captivity.
As particular Companies of Men became Inhabitants of different parts of the World, and had different Languages, so they invented various Characters: The Greeks and Romans have herein been most famous, and their Characters are chiefly used in Europe; but the Oriental Nations have their own peculiar manner of Writing;
several Specimens of which, may be seen in the following Page.*

Alphabets,

In all the usual Hands now Practis'd, &c.

Engrav'd by G. Bickham, Sen^r.

The Alphabet is the whole Order of the Letters in any Language, — from Alpha and Beta, the two first Letters in the Greek Tongue. —

The English Alphabet contains twenty six Letters, but others differ — in their Number and Form, and vary in their Placing and Writing. —

The Hebrews write from the Right hand to the Left; Others from — Left to Right, and back again from Right to Left; The Chinese from — Top to Bottom, and from Right to Left; but the Europeans, and most — Others, write from Left to Right without Retrogression to the Left. —

All our English Alphabets are exhibited in the two next Pages. —

*If you would write both Legible and Fair, —
Copy these Alphabets with all your Care.*

Observations,
 FOR
Ingenious Penmen;
 BY
M^r. Hart.

'Tis hard a Sprightly Fancy to Command, —
 And give a Respite to the Lab'ring Hand. —
 In vain we strive each trivial Fault to hide, —
 That shows but little Judgment, and more Pride. —
 Like some Nice Brude, offensive to the Sight, —
 Exactness gives, at best, a Cold Delight. —
 Each painful Stroke disgusts the lovely Mind; —
 For Art is lost, when Over-much refin'd. —
 To Err is Mortal; do what'e'r we can, —
 Some faulty Trifles will confess the Man. —
 Wisest are they who each mad Whim repress, —
 And Shun Gross Errours, by committing Less. —
